An abundance mindset is based on the belief that there is more than enough of everything to go around - for everyone. An abundance mindset is an outlook on life of receiving great things in our lifetime. One with that mindset believes that love will come their way, great joy will be apart of their life, success in many areas will happen; that would include great relationships with family, friends and co workers.

Due to the positive attitude of those with an abundant mindset, they take a pro-active approach to life. With this kind of positive outlook it's easy to understand why an individual will face each day with excitement and joy, knowing that this new day can develop into another new adventure and special experience.

I honestly believe this is an important way to walk through life as it helps us to react with a more positive understanding of life's challenges.

We can better deal with difficulties and setbacks. It's like an attitude that says "The best way to predict my future is to create it!" It's the mentality that says "I'm in control of my destiny and I expect good things to happen" and "I take a pro-active approach in life, rather than waiting for things to happen." An abundance mentality tells you that there are always new chances and opportunities.

A limiting mindset believes we can't accomplish something. so why try in the first place. Instead, it will find an excuse to not even start, like blaming the opportunity, or finding faults, putting it and the person who brought it to you down. A limiting mindset says things like "It's pyramid selling scheme." (I got that one this week).

The abundance mentality craves learning and growth. They have a never ending thirst for knowledge and developing new skills, whereas skeptical mindset believe they know enough and don't trust the unknown thereby severely limiting their learning and growth. The person with an abundant mentality is an optimist and is genuinely happy for others when they achieve success. They love to help others develop the abundant outlook in life and want to pass it on, they are encouragers of the mindset and promote it by example.

An abundance mindset understands failure is not failure, but just an important part of growth and success. It's a mindset that knows if rejected by a potential partner that looked great, it is not personal, it's not the end of the world. It looks at it with the attitude that there are plenty of fish in the sea so keep going. "Its not the big that eat the small, its the fast that eat the slow."

This mindset not only keeps us focused on our goals, but actually allows us to attain them. You know that it's possible and you know it can be done because others have already achieved it. We realize it's only a matter of time, so we enjoy the journey along the way. We understand that an inconvenience, rightly considered, is an adventure. On the other hand an adventure, wrongly considered, is simply an inconvenience.

This abundant mindset allows us to realize we can tap into our true God given potential.

We have a "I can!" attitude instead of " I can't" It drives you to overcome the challenges we face along the way to success. It teaches you to get back up when you're knocked down, to keep your focus, to stay the course, and head toward your goals in spite of the ongoing challenges along the way.

In conclusion do you agree its vital to your success to develop the Abundant Mindset to strive and thrive in today's environment of negativity about your opportunity?

I know and totally believe it will draw the real entrepreneurs to you as this abundant plentiful outlook is practiced in your life.

I grew up on Long Island NY; I met my wife Cindy in High School, we dated for several years and I went off to college for two years studying Construction Technology while we maintained our relationship.

I began working in NYC with a Construction Union. It was during those six months I realized I could not be an employee and needed to be self-employed if I was going to be happy in life.

I found a job locally working one season for a Landscape Contractor and learned the trade along with attending Night College in horticulture and Landscape design at the Farmingdale College.

Knowing I enjoyed this field I started my own business at the age of 21. One year later I bought our first home and married my High School sweetheart Cindy the following year. I enjoyed self-employment but discovered the business owned me. Then, during one of my unemployed winters, a friend introduced me to MLM. I fell in love with the concept of duplicating and multiplying my efforts through other people. That company was not a fit for us, but it did open my mind for other options when I saw an ad in the Wall Street Journal that lead me to be sponsored and trained by a young couple who were earning a six figure income in another more duplicable Network program.

I quickly learned how to develop a team who could help us build a second income stream part time. Cindy and I were fortunate to have been able to achieve enough success to be placed on the speaking circuit at a very young age. During the next two years we grew and learned the basic fundamentals of building a network. Unfortunately that company went out of business due to poor management.

Over the years I have made other attempts to finding the right program for us as I knew and believed in this concept and the industry. I knew I could succeed, and I knew people who felt as I did; in 1992 we finally found it. We are now celebrating our 25th year with the company, and we now have a global network in many countries with more than several hundred thousand people in our organizations and over 200 people in the Million Dollar Club and hundreds earning six figures with thousands full time.

We have traveled across the USA training other entrepreneurs how to build a solid income part time. We have been and continue to train globally in Canada, Australia, United Kingdom, Singapore, and Taiwan. We also have businesses in Spain, Hong Kong, and soon Malaysia; we will plan on trips to those countries. This is a designer lifestyle, I have helped many others reach their goals through it, and will continue to do so. We have truly been blessed and thank God for our success.
